21 May 2015

Dear Mr Lindeberg,

We are writing to you as part of the Sport for Rights campaign, a coalition of international organisations working to draw attention to the human rights situation in Azerbaijan in the context of next month's European Games. As you know, the Azerbaijani authorities have been carrying out an unprecedented human rights crackdown, working aggressively to silence all forms of criticism and dissent.

We wanted to thank you for your comments on 30 April, in your interview to Aftonbladet newspaper, when you stated "It is difficult to keep sports and state governance apart, but for us sports is the core. We do not support Azerbaijan. It is a regime that is not living up to standards. But we stand behind the fundamental idea of sports, which is to keep doors open rather than to close them". We also appreciated you expressing concern about reports on restrictions of press freedom in the country.

Your comments have come at a critical time, when too many officials connected to the European Games are all too willing to turn a blind eye towards human rights abuses in Azerbaijan, and in some cases, actively help the Azerbaijani government's attempt to whitewash its image. We have been using your remarks as a positive example, encouraging representatives from other National Olympic Committees across Europe to publicly support human rights in Azerbaijan.

We are writing to you now with an additional request. As you may know, the crackdown has resulted in the arrests of dozens of political prisoners, including eight journalists and human rights defenders. They have been targeted for their work defending the rights of others, and telling the truth about the situation in their country. We urge you to take the opportunity now, in the last few weeks before the Games, to publicly call for the release of these individuals. We have provided a list as an appendix.

Thank you once again for your attention to the critical human rights situation in Azerbaijan and your support for our jailed colleagues.

Sincerely yours,

Mike Harris, Director, 89up
